DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. This application has been filed with informal drawings which are acceptable for examination purposes only. Formal drawings will be required when the application is allowed. See form PTO-948 sent in previous office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 4-9, 12-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Studer [US. 2004/0200129] in view of Dowling [US. 2005/0036300] and further in view of Kimura [US. 5, 282,334].

In claims 1, 9 and 17, Studer discloses a device that includes at least one consumable source that decreases in effectiveness over time, comprising: a timer, a controller and a status indicator operatively connected; the timer maintaining the duration that the consumable source is in use; and the status indicator indicating when the timer has reached a preset duration and a maintenance is required (fig. 6; [0011], [0028], [0034]).

Studer does not expressively use the terms effectiveness indicator and operational indicator, however, a status indicator of Studer is an operational indicator for indicating the state of the device in operation [0035]; and the status indicator of Studer is an effectiveness indicator because it indicates the device requires maintenance, which is an indication that the consumable product (light, adhesive) in the device loses its effectiveness after a certain duration of use. Dowling teaches a device having a light indicator coupled with a sensor for sensing condition of a consumable product, or a timer for measuring the duration of use of a consumable product, and the light indicator can illuminate in a certain way to indicate the effectiveness of the product or lapse time to indicate the product needs to be changed (scent producing apparatus; [0080], [0102]). Kimura teaches an operational indicator coupled to a timer to indicate the timer is in operation (23, 24, 26; figs. 2-3; col. 3, lines 20-46). It would have been obvious to anyone of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement the status indicator of Studer with both functions effectiveness indicator and operational indicator to know when a consumable product is in use and when it needs to be changed due to its reduced effectiveness after a duration of use.

In claims 4, 8, 12 and 16, Studer (57, 58; fig. 6) and Dowling [0104] teach the indicators (status, effectiveness) are audio/visual.

In claims 5 and 13, Studer ([0011], [0028], [0034]) and Dowling [0102] teach a service indicator for indicating a need for servicing (maintenance, change).

In claims 6, 7, 14 and 15, Studer discloses the consumable source is a light source and an adhesive surface (abstract; fig. 6).

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

5. In light of the teaching from various references, it may suggested that the applicant revises claim 1 to include an insect trap comprising a plurality of timers and a plurality of consumable sources, each timer coupled to a consumable source for monitoring the effectiveness of the consumable source (applicant figure 1), effectiveness indicator, operational indicator.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

7. A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
